Assessments & Forecast

1. The first series of protests organized by 50501 movement activists took place on February 5, in response to executive actions signed by President Trump, deportation raids conducted by the US Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), and other controversial policies enacted by his administration. Attendance at these demonstrations varied from the low hundreds to mid-thousands. Despite heightened sentiments among participants, the protests remained peaceful, with no notable incidents of unrest reported. The most recent 50501 movement protests held under the 'Not My President's Day' banner on February 17, also saw varying turnouts ranging from the low hundreds to the mid-thousands and transpired largely peacefully.
2. FORECAST: Based on this precedent, the upcoming protests are likely to witness similar turnouts ranging between the low hundreds-to-mid thousands. Given precedent, the highest turnouts are likely to be seen in Boston, Chicago, Denver, San Francisco, and Washington, DC. Additionally, spontaneous protests may manifest in other cities, driven by online mobilization and local activism. While previous protests indicate that the upcoming demonstrations are likely to transpire peacefully, the likelihood of escalations of unrest amid heightened political sentiments cannot be ruled out. This is likely to be witnessed in the form of roadblocks and localized scuffles between protesters and police. Given this, a bolstered security presence can be expected near the slated protest locations. Additionally, the protests and any potential unrest are also likely to cause significant disruptions to vehicular and pedestrian traffic in the vicinity of the protest sites.

Recommendations

1. Those operating or residing in the USA on March 4 are advised to maintain heightened vigilance in the vicinity of the aforementioned protest locations due to the slated protests.
2. Allot for disruptions to travel in the vicinity of the aforementioned locations during the slated timings.
